nothing
will hold us back now inevitability of apocalypse is nigh these quarrels facing us, not moving, standing still may someday claim earth, sea, and sky push push forward through crust of earth devour every living creature the sky covered in ash and flame falling down on everything the sky coated in ash and flame raining heavens piercing burn feeble creatures the weak removed the strong reviewed before ripping them in two together

we'll tear it down Schala, bless us, we need you now broken paradise
shattered
paradise
together
we are one, we are one together we will stand on open wings as this black omen shines its light into the lives of all these frightened children and wives [x2] together we will stand on shining shores as this black omen shines its broken pieces through the skies so beautiful

and as we travel through time, he may shield his eyes to protect himself from winds tearing by like blades of past mistakes

to protect himself from winds tearing by through the skies of black and purple colors and lights so long I've waited here for you so jaded and fixated on those neon lights now I pray you'll find me someday not too far
