

Story of the Year "Light Years Away"

the skyline tonight is burning my skin but she loves the view and feeling the blinding blue lights are pulling us in light years away her touch stays the same before we choke on the rain

with angels calling her name
before we die
before this night is over
we turn to flames

licking her flesh
the cold metal floor their motionless eyes are watching consider these scars a new souvenir close my eyes as the sun disappears

choking on the rain
it's killing you
they're killing you
they're breaking you they're already breaking you that's what you get
