Down on his knees he's praying religiously
Not god his faith was buried a long time ago
By the neverending hopeless days He's praying for a bit of money a short instant of charity
Just a few dimes in his fight for humanity

Capitalism is the game darwinism is the rule
And your life is at stake we pretend not to see
This is a case of emergency

He's sleeping on the floor
He's already given up on this lost battle
Out on the street peace of mind is something that she'll never find
If only she had one more chance to make things different

Capitalism is the game darwinism is the rule
And your life is at stake we pretend not to see
This is a case of emergency

Just a few dimes in his fight for humanity

Capitalism is the game darwinism is the rule
And your life is at stake we pretend not to see
This is a case of emergency
