Sometimes I feel like I'm trapped here inside of me

These chains of life wrapped around my heart, I can't break free

Sometimes I feel so lost, I can't find my way

I would pay the highest cost to run away

Trapped in this dungeon of self, I hide well

No one to let me out and I've got no one to tell

Sitting here silently writhing inside from my pain
I point my finger at You, but I'm the only one to blame

Someday I will break from this cage

And will run away, fly away

Someday I will tear down this wall

That holds me back, holds me down

Sitting in this puddle of spite, who are You?
You think You can change my life, but what can You do?

I've been sitting here pleasantly wretched, hiding my shame

I've tried all my life but You say with one touch You can take away my pain?

You say You will open this cage

I will run away, fly away

You say You will tear down this wall

That holds me back, holds me down
You say You will open this cage

I will run away, fly away
You say You will tear down this wall

That holds me down

I followed You here, but You led a lie

Another false teacher, destined to die

I spit on Your cross and Your false doctrine

Who's gonna save You from the mess that You're in?

My blood-dripping hands drag me to my hole
You were the very last chance I had to save my soul

I'm looking for chains to tie myself, but nothing I see

Through the death of this Christ my chains have been set free

You have broken my cage
I will run away, fly away

You have torn down this wall
That holds me back, holds me down

You have broken my cage

I will run away, fly away

You have torn down this wall

That holds me down

I need You

I want You

To rescue me
