Look at all the architecture
I love to touch the textures of all the mortar mixtures

no one loves it more than me that's why i have to set it free 'cause I feel the buildings weeping I hear the brickwork screaming it's in such misery
that's why it's begging me chow down, chow down the buildings

look at all the sculptures think of all the untold tortures feels like a loud lament from all the monuments no one else can hear them cry when they suffer so do I 'cause I feel the statues weeping

I hear the granite screaming
it's in such misery

I like to lick the paintings I wanna taste their pain why the paintings have to hurt lord, give me the strength to do my work 'cause I feel the paintings weeping

I hear the canvas screaming
it's in such misery
chew through, chew through the paintings suck up, suck up the statues
