I'm not opposed to giving in but who's interest would that be in?
Love's what compromise is for as long as half the giving's yours

I don't object that you make me wait stranded in a neutral state Patience is a virtue, true
but patience has it's boundaries too

And I don't mind you hide our love there's someone else you must think of I'll aid your case to any length but secrets aren't the path to strength

And I won't resist the tender cage I won't withdrawal in fear or rage the greater I survive, the more I am alive

I don't care if you don't trust or think my motives born of lust Faith can be my gift to you but gifts must have their limits too

Patience is a virtue, true
but patience has it's boundaries too
