I woke up and my head hurt had a mouthful of blood and dirt bits of heart all over my shirt heart all over my shirt

Something painful feeding me love split my skull to hatch a dove now that's all there ever was all there ever was

If I were you, and I am
I'd let the question take my hand

You woke up without a name went to work without a brain took one breath and everything changed everything was change

Something painful feeding you light split your skin to hatch a life now that's all there ever was
all there ever was

If I were you, and I am
I'd let the question take my hand If you were me, and you are you'd let the question take your heart

There's a light bulb in every one bright enough it could swallow the Sun every mask will be erased there is just the original face

If I were you
I am, I am
It's all one place
It's all the original face
