I'm just another penguin squirming in my tux I'm dancing with your mom

she says that I'm a klutz

I'm drinking with your dad like all the groomsmen are I'm getting sorta tipsy
there is an open bar

And they pass me the microphone so I can make a toast
Everybody catches you staring at a ghost

Cuz you're afraid that I'll blurt out
The man I love is married now

But I can keep a secret
We only did it once
I know you want to forget it
You say how you were drunk

And you don't want your closet Making too much noise

And you were just exploring Boys will be boys

So maybe when I leave here we can put it all aside
But before I do, I want to kiss the bride

Cuz I just have to see her face when I say that I share her taste in men

You're just another penguin

squirming in your tux You're dancing with your mom she says that you're a klutz

Cuz you dance like, there's always, someone behind you
And there is but, your family is deaf, dumb and blind, blind

squirming in your tux
