In somno in eo metus et post velum alter animus reperio in asper coritas salteramus et sine cutis concubitamur vis impetus ex gaudium ex gaudium et terror

per speciem
'ut quisque est vir optimus ita difficilem alios improbos suspiciatur'
tum, si equidem

cum asper coritas saltero ediscens
sic nihil agis quin ego audiam per somnum sive vigilans quo rerum natura ditesceres versutus In sleep I enter fear and behind the veil I find another soul we dance with rough affection and copulate without skin a paroxysm of joy
of joy and terror

Ostensibly,
'the more a man is the harder to suspect wickedness in others'
then, if I for my part dance with rough affection learning so you do nothing I do not hear of in sleep or watchful the world becomes artful
