At downcast head I'm standing between

Speechless rows and sentiment how my eyes defer to cry

I'm watering the ground with my tears

And deliver a prayer

For the one I lost

Memorial prayer

For those dears that we've bereaved

Death hacked them

Every beloved to his lovers

Oh, the losses that are coiling around us

Abide alone with all sweet memories

That are growing within my depth

Oh, why those we love are (to be) taken first?

The splendor of their life wilted

Like flowers at derelict field

They've left us

Pile of farewell tears

Cries out into the void

Drowning at vast sadness

A limdids memories as spring

Memorial prayer

All that we have loved

Now passes through our damp eyes

Memorial prayer

For our dears that death erased their shades

One by one like leaves at autumn falling and lust

I didn't know will I ever be able to outcry

My tears?

I'm still waiting at unending nights

Await for thee to return

Oh, all in vain

And we hope to find comfort at cry

But the drawback is too fierce in order

To over come about the
