I got home kind of late last night
My mind wasn't clear but I could tell something wasn't right
So silent I could hear my heart pump
But then I heard a sound that made me jump

I tried to get real brave, tried to look around
I tried to find out where came that sound
There I looked, the less I could see
But the voices keep calling, calling out to me

I hear voices when I'm all alone
Hearing voices but there's nobody home
Hear the voices could it be they're calling out to me?
Hearing voices I look, why can't I see?
I hear voices, can't stop those voices

It happened again the very next day
I still couldn't understand what they were trying to say
Could only get the courage to open up one eye
Couldn't see nothing but the voices they don't lie

I searched and searched but not a soul I found
Pretty damn sure no one was around
The more I looked the less I could see
Then I realized the voices were calling from me

I hear voices when I'm all alone
Hearing voices but there's nobody home
Hear the voices could it be they're calling out to me?
Hearing voices I look, why can't I see?

Are they demons?
Or are they angels or am I crazy?

Now, the voices I start to understand
They have to do with the master plan
You think about what you'd do?
'Cause one day the voices will be calling out to you

The voices I hear now I know are true
They come not from one but they come from two

The real point is what I'm missing
From which voice will I listen?

I hear voices
Hearing voices
Do you hear the voices?
Can't stop the voices
