My lips have found you denied tears
I've been a mirror for your fears
I lived with pain our last embrace
With teardrop on your neck
Though there are words I won't ever say
But you just kissed me

I will be bound by your pure hands I'll set you free from your own ghosts, with all my courage
The words I write will not describe your face, your strength, your eyes
The words I write will be the half of what my heart knows

My lips have found you denied tears
I've been a mirror for your fears
But all you've done is...
You turned your back on all my dreams
You did not see my cries
You closed the door to all my love
You did not see my cries

The words I write will tell you that I give you my love
