When dusk is dumb, someone tells the truth
We cannot hear them thin mist conceals what comes from their lips Tears are rain of ashes
They are the ones who lost all their wars
They are the ones who lost all their wars
They're sending to us letters from their world They're sending to us letters from their world they're the dwellers of the silent reign

So weep with me and come, under this rain together we will hear their silent cries

They try to light all uncertain times They're trying to tell the truth
Though they're in jail and victims of their reign Though they're in jail and victims of their reign to save us by our lies

So feel their tears and cries, forever they will bother, they will save us by our lies

Can someone see this silent heaven?
Please drive my mind to safer places
Carve all our dreams in silent paintings
Sky free their souls from bars of silence

They are the ones who lost all their wars
They are the ones who lost all their wars
They're sending to us letters from their world
They're sending to us letters from their world they're
the dwellers of the silent reign

So, come with me and hear: they are crying alone
They are angels, they are the ones who write letters from silent heaven

Can someone see this silent heaven?
Carve all our dreams in silent paintings
Sky free their souls from bars of silence
