

Midnight Youth "Flash"

It's hard, in a flash, to let you go
It's hard, in a flash, to let you go
When we were young we were told, that we could just be boys and let our dreams unfold And as we grew we lived a sheltered life, a modern life that let us run and play

But it's tough when God comes crashing in, to keep your soul at peace
And It's tough to do this growing up, when driven to your knees
And it's hard, in a flash, to let you go Oh, it's hard, in a flash, to let you go

Playing songs of the past, Sharing the meals we would share is how we deal With the sheathing of our skin, and the thought that we could win against all odds

When it's tough when God comes crashing in, to set your soul on fire And it's tough to keep this love alive, when stripped of your desire
When the filaments behind my eyes, are rusted, rotted, burnt Then I think of you and all is bright, a flash among the burn

But it's tough when God comes crashing in, to keep your soul at rest,
And it's tough to do this growing up, when delivered such a test
But we fight and strive to live the life, that you had hoped to lead
And we're drinking in your honor, even though you'll never leave us
Cos it's true
Yes, it's true
Oh, it's true
I love you
