I was born on the cold side of the mountain
I wanna wake up on the warm side of the bed
How I start here?
And how I end there?
That is the part, I ain't worked out yet

Every day, I climb a little bit higher
Every night, I learn something new
I'm writin' it down
In case I forget
One day it'll be my story for you

On every page, you will know, how much I love you?
In every line, you will see, how much I care?
With every word, we'll grow a little closer
Even though, we both know, I can't be there
That's why I'm writin' it down down down down down
Ohh hoo, I'm writin' it down
For you and for me
And for the whole wide world to read
Ohh hoo, I'm writin' it down

All my life I've been hopin' and prayin'
For my time to finally arrive
To put down this pen
To say it's the end
And wake up back home with you by my side

On every page, you will know, how much I love you?
In every line, you will see, how much I care?
With every word, we'll grow a little closer
Even though, we both know, I can't be there
That's why I'm writin' it down down down down down
Ohh hoo, I'm writin' it down
For you and for me
And for the whole wide world to read
Ohh hoo, I'm writin' it down

I was born on the cold side of the mountain
I wanna wake up on the warm side of the bed
How I start here?
And how I end there?

That is the part, I ain't worked out yet
