Death of Queen Jane

Queen Jane lay in labor full nine days or more
'Til the women were so tired, they could stay no longer there (2x)

"Good women, good women, good women as ye be Do open my right side and find my baby"

"Oh no," said the women, "That never can be We will send for King Henry, and hear what he say."

King Henry was sent for, King Henry did come
"What do ail you, my lady, your eyes look so dim?"

"King Henry, King Henry, will you do one thing for me?
That's to open my right side and find my baby"

"Oh no," said King Henry, "That's a thing I'll never do If I lose the Flower of England, I shall lose the branch to"

King Henry went mourning and so did his men And so did the dear baby, for Queen Jane did die then

And how deep was the mourning, how black were the bands
How yellow, yellow were the flamboys they carried in their hands

There was fiddling, aye, and dancing on the day the babe was born
But poor Queen Jane beloved lay cold as a stone.

Child #170

King Henry VIII had six wives and three children. Queen Jane Seymour, the third wife bore the third child, the only son. She died twelve days after the birth, which was not a Caesarean. The child, King

Edward VI, was a sickly child and reigned only a few years as a teenager.
