When rain washes blood off the ground down the shadowy path Iâ€™ll come by When you utter your last sin aloud my star will shine in the sky When time decides to kill when time closes our eyes our sins will vanish in tears the ground will hush our cries

And the rain keeps falling outside as if crying on our behalf
And the wind keeps howling outside as if screaming on our behalf
And the rain keeps falling outside
as if crying on our behalf
And the wind keeps howling outside
for the eternal soul that I have

When the blood is washed off by rain The sky will never shed tears again I will utter my one last request in silence my sadness will rest And then time once again will open our eyes the glow of new life shall reign what was turned to dust shall rise

And the rain keeps falling outside
as if crying on our behalf
And the wind keeps howling outside
as if screaming on our behalf
And the rain keeps falling outside
as if crying on our behalf
And the wind keeps howling outside
for the eternal soul that I have

when time closes our eyes
our sins will vanish in tears
And then time once again
will open our eyes

the glow of new life will reign

And the rain keeps falling outside
as if crying on our behalf
And the wind keeps howling outside
as if screaming on our behalf
And the rain keeps falling outside
as if crying on our behalf
And the wind keeps howling outside
