Throat is dry I'm feeling sick
The towns moving fast
I never feel like this
I use to be among the crowd
My friends around me
Now I'm feeling singled out
I'm feeling blue
Seems as if I never knew you
I'm stuck between walls
The heat takes a toll on me
Fair-weather friends
Are all that are left
I'm alone and my life here is dead
I need to get out of this town
Memories fade but the heart stays the same
The ghosts of the past will haunt
And now,
My heart takes the train
The coals help it to move along
Fast on tracks uncertain
Trying to find something new
But I burned all the bridges
And I'm about to crash and burn
My mind is always overreacting
It's hard to be completely there.
I only stare, and wonder why I am here
Now I'm too blind to see that
All I ever do is sit and watch tv
It seems that I'm losing my mind
Searching for the answers that are impossible to find
I'm getting nowhere in this slow town
Everyone around me has slowly moved on
I need to catch the early train wherever it may go
To search for answers which are impossible to find
I need to find myself a home worth calling my own
