So break these vows like the others before you
Your clumsy hands have set this fire

Some say this gift is a blessing
But I know your mind's made up
So we can talk this through
But even I know that your lies are coming back to bury you

I know she's looking at me
Her heart is filled with disease
Destroy us all and then onto the next
I know she came here alone
But she has someone at home
He should have known she was just like the rest

She was just like the rest
Deep inside she always confessed her deepest lies
I believe every single time

So what does she do
She's destroyed and dishonest
She never should have loved
She was always the proudest
It was all your fault
It was all your fault

I know she's looking at me
Her heart is filled with disease
Destroy us all and then onto the next.
I know she came here alone
But she has someone at home
He should have known she was just like the rest

She was just like the rest

In spite of what I said
I'll never forget that the traitor
Will never find a way so she'll stay right where she belongs

Back where she belongs deep inside she always confessed her deepest lies

I believe

I know she's looking at me
Her heart is filled with disease
Destroy us all and then onto the next.
I know she came here alone
But she has someone at home
He should have known she was just like the rest

She was just like the rest
