And if the sun sets a mile ahead
maybe there we can just pretend this time, it just seems...

If I could do it all over again and skip those mistakes I made way back when It's just the kind of situation that I was in to take my life and turn it back around again I find it hard to understand that when we look back at all our time spent you tell me some things just may seem to matter more to me

And if the sun sets a mile ahead
maybe there we can just pretend
This time, it just seems
If we can't forget just what was said
maybe then we can pretend that all of our lives could be perfect in the end Take our time, maybe we'll grow up but you'll learn from what you've done
You might believe in what you see
But no, it never made sense to me

(So I'll do it all over again)
But I burnt them all with my time spent You can't leave in the words that people said
If I want something done I'll have to do it myself again It makes sense a lot more to me to see who they are and not who they want to be The sun set is a mile ahead and maybe then we can understand that all (all) of our dreams have never made sense to me
(And if the sun sets a mile ahead
maybe there we can just pretend)
And now it just seems

If we can't forget just what was said
that all of our lives could be perfect in the end

You might believe in what you see
But no, it never made sense to...me

I'm so sick for closing my eyes (I'm so sick for closing my eyes)
That I can't see myself getting to sleep tonight
'Cause all these dreams are locked in my mind and they'll keep me awake for days at a time

Can't forget just what was said Maybe then we'll understand that all of our lives will be so perfect in the end

If we can't forget just what was said
that all of our lives could be perfect in the end
You might believe in what you see
But no, it never made sense to me
