A resurrection from the dead without purpose without meaning

Only to find my source of hope from choruses long forgotten

Heroes in a dying age carry the torch once burning bright

A dedication to those of us who won't give up the fight

I won't watch myself crumble I won't lose the will to live

That pathway leads to nowhere defeated purpose killed

These words have meaning they convinced me to survive

And burn down all the false prophets and leave their lies behind

Can you see these burning eyes gazing at an empty sky

Everyday is like a step closer to the sorrow they provide

Yet I hold on to what's left find the best inside myself
I will conquer hades

Personal reflections of a 23 year old

I face this broken mirror as my drama unfolds

Desolate I vow to start a new

Forgive forget the hatred I once knew

My faith and my devotion against the world...

These words have meaning they convinced me to survive

Send this message to the ones I love

I've wished for too much but not death from above

My days of suffering will end this very night

Witness tired wounded angels- angels taking flight

From endless depression to inspiration

I'll tear apart these gray skies

Happiness appreciation for what I have

I have conquered hades
