Well, I never thought that I
Would have to live without
The one that stopped my heart,
But the time is running out.

Time is running, it's running away
Time is running, it's running away
Take it back; your tears are too late
Cause time is running, it's running away

For a moment in time,
I thought you were all mine.
"Forever", did you mean what you said,
Or were you just playing games with my pretty little head?
You would call in the morning light
Though we talk through the middle of the night
Forget it; does it feel true?
The only thing I want to forget is you singing...

I'm losing the heart
To do what I must do
Cry me a river, baby.
I've cried a flood over you.
