Oh they say the good girls
Always want themselves a good guy
But the truth is every boy
Wants a little bad girl inside

Someone they can take home
Someone they can take out
And in the bedroom they blow your Mind

Then these girls go out
And they walk the streets in Hopes that one day they're gonna meet
The perfect guy
With bright blue eyes
And he's surprisingly polite
'Cause he keeps his shoes tied

Loves his momma
Works a-nine to five
And when they grab a couple drinks
Disppear in to
The night

And what I see
Time after time
Is they settle for whatever they find
And leave the good ones far behind

You can say you disagree
Say "I don't buy this"
It's an unfortunate science
And I'm standing behind it

Some guys in the bar take it way too far
Or don't take it at all
Stand against the wall
And make future plans with the girls they see
Together with they guys who they wanna be

And then sometimes
Say they're looking for a good girl

Take her home
Promise 'em the world
Then the next night
Someone else looks alright
Kicks her to the curb
And she's standing on the wall beside
Good guy

And what I see
Time after time
Is they settle for whatever they find
And leave the good ones far behind

You can say you disagree
Say "I don't buy this"

Oh yeah
Oh yeah
