Yeah u know me, when I'm happy,
You see me smiling, and you think that's all my life
could be,
But did you know, there are times, I get gripped in a
grey-scale,
All these bright colours fade into sometime so murky,
so pale.
And all these lovely songs we sing, u know I find them
stale.

That's the side of me, you don't know.
That's the side, you never really wanna see.
That's probably the time I need u the most,
But I don't know where you seem to be,
That's the uncelebrated side of me,
The uncelebrated side of me;
Something that's only confided in me.
You might call it a phase, but that's also me.
Then you say you really know me.

There are times I'm so quiet.
Do you ever try to interpret my silence?
Wondered what it could be?
And then you r surprised when I claim that you don't know me.
Ever watched me break down?
I'm not always very hopeful as you think I might be.

That's the side of me, you don't know.
That's the side, you never really wanna see.
That's probably the time I need u the most,
But I don't know where you seem to be,
That's the uncelebrated side of me,
The uncelebrated side of me;
Something that's only confided in me.
You might call it a phase, but that's also me.
Then you say you really know me.

The uncelebrated side of me,
You r so oblivious, you never seem to see.
It's not always there, but still it's a mark of your fantasy.
I wish when I'm not there, you felt lonely than bored,

It wish when you r there, I felt protected than insecure.

That's the side of me, you don't know.
That's the side, you never really wanna see.
That's probably the time I need u the most,
But I don't know where you seem to be,
That's the uncelebrated side of me,
The uncelebrated side of me;
Something that's only confided in me.
You might call it a phase, but that's also me.
Then you say you really know me.
