"A Call to Arms"

Pass the word, it's a call to arms
Midnight man at your door
Blackened faces run in the night
Daybreak under the floor

Bring my bow
Fill my head with flame and we must
Let them know that the torch is lit again
Crystallize the pain behind your eyes
Are you ready to fight?

You hear the drum and
Run for your life
Sweet Avalon the heat is on

In other words, I hope and pray
That time and tide wash the hate away
A simple man with simple thoughts
Who turned to force as a last resort

All around us, chaos rings
Buildings crumbling down
Silhouettes in the fiery rain
Timbers crash to the ground

Bring my spear
Invested with my youth
Bring the children near they must now be told the truth
Old and young and those of foreign tongue
Are you ready to fight?

You hear the drum and
Run for your life
Sweet Avalon the heat is on

In other words, I hope and pray
That time and tide wash the hate away
A simple man with simple thoughts
Who turned to force as a last resort

In other words, I hope and pray
That time and tide keep the day away

When simple men with simple thoughts
Will turn to force as a last recourse

In other words, I hope and pray
That time and tide wash the hate away
A simple man with simple thoughts
