Autumn days by the sea
Everyone and the sun had departed
He was lonesome like me
So the change for romance might have started
He spoke of friendship much to much
And never looked my way
Still i think of him until today

Perhaps he was more than a friend
Perhaps its a game i pretend
Perhaps he ment love when he first said hello
But i was to foolish to know
And let him go, and let him go

He took hold of my hand
As we strot in the cold of september
Than he wrote in the sand just my name and the words i remember
Like children's castles near the shore
They soon will washed away
Still i think of him until to day

Perhaps he was more than a friend
Perhaps its a game i pretend
Perhaps he ment love when he first said hello
But i was to foolish to know
And let him go, and let him go

Perhaps he ment love when he first said hello
But i was to foolish to know
And let him go, and let him go

Greetings Hanny
