There are dreamers across America and they all have their own dreams Some wish they could be movie stars others just want to survive, it seems

Roxana
Where have you gone?
Roxana
Has your dream been drawn?

It's not that she thinks that no one understands her It's just that she knows that no one wants to try And it's not that she's alone for she's surrounded by people But she feels nothing but loneliness the world has given up on her

Roxana isn't pessimistic she's actually quite the opposite If you know her you would agree she would fight and never quit Everyday, her dad takes her money to buy more booze for himself
"I can recycle beer bottles for money" she constantly tells herself Her mom tells her she's useless but Roxana just smiles to herself She continues to say she's blessed "At least I still have my health"

Roxana
Where have you gone?
Roxana
Has your dream been drawn?

Last week Roxana left her home the home she's known for 15 years I'm not sure to where she's roamed but I know she hasn't dropped a tear

Thousands of girls leave their homes with hopes of achieving their dreams Roxana also has a dream of her own but her dream is just to leave home
