100 degrees Fahrenheit engulfed in darkness
Pitch black black as night stench of carbon monoxide lingers
Ã...Ã...oh, so slightly engines humming a grinding tune Suffocating air an unquenchable thirst metal grinds with metal Stranded in paradise paralyzed with dear
From heat exhaustion your loving mother dies
And you brave father had one too many heat stokes Holding your baby sister watching, horrified panicstruck
As youÃ're forced to witness her life lost an infinity Ever so sweetly plucked from her fragile body Death by starvation as strangers and loved ones die side by side Al you know is an impending doom the putrid smell of feces and urine Mixed ever so slightly with the nauseating stench of rotting corpses Fills your nostrils Seizing your sanity knowing that youÃ'll die like the others Without water, without food consummation of the dead by the living Days go on forever nights, an eternal damnation death turns his head, scythe in hand Towards you, time to die exhalation of thy last breath begotten forever
Another member of the faithful forgotten forever 100 degrees Fahrenheit engulfed in darkness
