So the light invades my room,
On a sleepless night.
A long crusade through darkness,
Another drawn out fight.

And all the memories,
They stab you in the back,
It's just the way things go,
There's just no turning back.

But every time that I see you,
Every time now it's still the same (everytime),
Every time that I see you,
Every time you call my name.

And when you think you are in control,
Something brings you down,
It takes from the highest cloud,
To the stoney ground.
And all the times you've spent,
That seemed so distant start,
Are creeping up on you,
When you thought them far apart.

But every time that I see you,
Every time now it's still the same (everytime),
Every time that I see you,
Every time you call my name.

But every time that I see you,
Every time now it's still the same (everytime),
Every time that I see you,
Every time you call my name.

I mean't so many times to tell you,
I never wanted you to go,
I felt so many times,
To cry out loud,
But I couldn't show.

But every time that I see you,
Every time now it's still the same (everytime),

Every time that I see you,
Every time you know my name.

Don't tell me I don't belong
I need your love to make me strong,
Every time you call my name,
I see your face it's still the same,
Don't tell me I don't belong,
I need your love to make me strong,
Every time you call my name,
I see your face it's still the same
