My people were here long before the others cast their sails to the wind Before the tears of innocence like a hard rain would desend My people spread like eagle wings across the mountains and the plains Now the feathers have been broken but the eagle still remains My people heard the thundering as the iron horse crossed the land Its echos drowning out the cries of those who could not understand
My people watched the buffalo dying in the sun While those tracks of steal lead to the sea, their will be done
Now their blood flows through these rivers and then into our veins
And their hearts are beating louder then all the years
of shame
And their blood flows through these rivers just like an endless rain
And their hearts are beating louder then all the years
of shame
My people have fought for this land, here and across the sea
Their shadows cast on sacred ground for all enturnity My people's pride still can soar and dance across this land
You can see it in the eys of every woman, child, and man
Because the blood flows through these rivers and then
into our veins
And their hearts are beating louder then all the years
of shame
And their blood flows through these rivers just like an
endless rain
And their hearts are beating louder then all the years
of shame
My people are the Navoho, my people are the Cherokee My people are Arapoho, my people are Menominee My people are, my people are...
