Ignite the days.

Today has got me down,
And nothings stronger now,
Than what I've come to know.

As day begins to break,
It's all that I can take,
And cracks begin to show.

The day has won again with wearisome routine,
It ways me down and renders my mind to machine,
Morning hours come with certainty,
Like fireworks to flame we work just to ignite the days.

And they are breaking like a burden to our back,
With promised failure faults and foreordained attack,
It's burning down this fuse, and burning fast,
Like fireworks to flame we work just to ignite the days.
