Lover
Hostage in an aeroplane
Lover
Feels like I've been here all day
And the ocean feels like Mars
And the acid feels like rain
If a broken heart is broken
Then how can it still feel pain?

You can take a broken heart
And smash it through a windowpane
It will break right through
But it'll never be the same again
And you can take a cactus heart
Leave it in the driving rain
And though it might flower
Things will never be the same again
Never be the same again

Oh, lover
I'm walking down the same highway
And lover
I'm all alone; there's no one here to blame
And now everything's familiar
But nothing feels the same
And my dusty mouth is empty
'Cause there's nothing left to say

You can take a broken heart
And smash it through a windowpane
It can break right through
But things will never be the same again
And you can take a cactus heart
Leave it in the driving rain
And though it might flower
It will never be the same again
Never be the same again

Lover
Don't try to dry your eyes
Lover
Look to the desert sky

And there's no use in imagining
Or resurrecting what could have been
'Cause you know just as well as I
That everything must die
Hello is goodbye
It's time to say goodbye
Everything must die

You can take a broken heart
And smash it through a windowpane
You can break right through
But things will never be the same again
And you can take a cactus heart
Leave it in the driving rain
And though it might flower
We will never be the same again
Never be the same again
