So raise your glass up high to all the lonely nights
We've spent singing anthems of our own demise
And when we say goodbye, make sure you realize
I might never come back home, and so the story goes...

So long pray we don't blow it
I don't really know if or when we will return
We'll win, or die trying
They'll never take us alive

And with every word you say, you don't really wanna know
The things that I have seen
And with every word you say, I cannot believe
This disregard for subtlety
So when we say goodbye, make sure you realize
I know I'm never coming home

So long, guess we didn't know it would ever be this hard
We just kept our big mouths shut
But we know now, that we are alone, we fight alone.

They'll never take us alive
