Sometimes I sit alone, and carve
Our children's names into the Concrete because a love like our's
Is already, set in stone. So
Sharing secrets will never grow
Old. My love for you is endless,
Whisper than walk away. Monuments
Of an undying devotion no longer
Measured by the miles between who
We were and who we grew to be.
From beneath the city skies, we Find the meaning of life. In an Instant we'll find ourselves
Buried knee deep in all of our Hopes dreams and failures. And may
We dream forever and ever and Ever. Hand in hand we'll find Comfort in all of our misery. The Moment I heard you say, "forever
And always" it was the day, I
Found a reason to scream towards
The heavens. True love found me on A thursday afternoon wide eyed and
Ready to accept the notion of Holding on, to a steady heartbeat.
So listen to my heartbeat, it will Sing you to sleep. Our memories
Are nothing, without you and me.
We'll die young and beautiful, but
Angels don't watch over angels. No
One is perfect. Now realize each
Of our scars, they could never
Keep us apart. Tonight we'll Pledge eternal love and end our Generation as they'll continue to Fuck every skeleton, within our Closets. Loved ones left chasing
Shadows and the worst is yet to Come. Kiss me, we'll never hurt
Again as we drown in remembrance.
My love, I call your name as were Swallowed whole, but never fear

What you can't see. Never trust
What you may never feel. Replace
The ghost of our abandoned souls
With pain. "I love you!" she
Said, "In hell we will find
Ourselves entrenched in flames,
But never apart". As soulmates for
The soulless, seeking tonight, we Walk the city skies hoping to find
The heavens we once left behind.
In every fear I've placed faith
And I found the reason why this World of suffering coincides
Within our hearts. A struggle to Live a life that once was our's.
Suffocating, so suffocate the Memories. the statue of what we Once worshiped. Only to show the World that even in death, we will Never be apart for all eternity
