Superstar

There used to be a better kind
Of rock and rollin' superstar.
They'd strut around and do their thing.
All I know how to do is sing.

But I don't do that so well.
I never summon things from hell.
I'm just a regular white guy who's afraid to rock.

There used to be no better brand,
Of frontman personality.
They'd strut around and do their thing.
All I know how to do is sing.

But I don't do that so well.
I never summon things from hell.
I'm just a regular white guy who's afraid to rock,
So hard.
I break my guard,
And give myself,
Away, away.

(Solo)

But I don't do that so well.
I never summon things from hell.
I'm just a regular white guy who's afraid to,
Rockin' to the sky who's afraid to,
Rockin' to the sky who's afraid to rock
So hard.
I break my guard,
And give myself,
Away, away, away, away, away, away.
