Community authorities preach constantly that noone here is safe anywhere anymore and every few days they are proven right today's bomber picked a railway platform at rush hour and the aftermath was dreadfully familiar the dead the wounded the debris amongst the casualties an eight day old baby tired frustrated and i close my eyes to hide and they still burn inside take a walk taste the world it's our time to see what's real you can't control what has to be i pledge for freedom do you feel free war burns through me and i don't acknowledge all that i see you better fight to stay alive i'll kiss the ground if i have to watch you die better fight to stay alive i'll kiss the ground if i have to watch you die you better fight to stay alive take a walk taste the world it's our time to see what's real can't control what has to be pledge for freedom do you feel free war burns through me war burns through me free war burns through me and i don't acknowledge what i see cause the streets are filled but empty burn inside take a walk taste the world it's our time to see what's real can't control what has to be pledge for freedom do you feel free
