Hey sweet lady, where are you running so fast?
Maybe if you slowed down then we could make this last
But you're running at a hundred miles
Flashing that million-dollar smile
And everybody turns to stone when they see that you're alone

Hey sweet lady, don't you recognize me?
Haven't you seen me running through your dreams?
I've got everything you want
And nothing left to flaunt
So just give me a chance or at least a second glance
Because I think I love you, but I can't help thinking
That you love somebody but me

It seems that lately you've been avoiding me
Well, I'm going to sit right here until you finally see
I've got everything you want
So just give me a chance or at least a second glance
Because I think I love you, but I can't help thinking
That you love somebody but me
