Its time, it's time to clean this slate And push our way past anger into something new and honest. To shoulder the weight, find our own way It's easier than you might think. We've heard the same excuses for too long. Is anybody listening? Did you notice that there's something missing? Or do you even care? If you're willing to try, you're willing to change It's easier than you might think. To find your own voice, sing your own song. Find our own voice, find our own way, find the strength The strength to change, sing our own song, stand alone. it's time to break away and push our way past anger into something new and hopeful. If you're willing to try, you're willing to change To shoulder the weight and find our own way. Find our own voice; sing our own song. Find our own voice, find our own way, find the strength The strength to change, sing our own song, stand alone. The time has come to turn the page to stand alone and find a way. Changing still feel the same.
