You go to war without a care in the world No matter what the cost Must be a reason for all this treason It never mattered if we won or lost

You want it You got it You break it You bought it

Stuck in the middle of a civil war Well what the fuck do you expect Our occupation of other nations Is bound to have a fucking violent effect

You want it You got it You brake it You bought it

So what, you always try to go to war but you never went It doesn't matter if blood is splattered We make a killing off the ones that we send

You want it You got it You brake it You bought it
