Read in the paper nearly everyday
People breakin' up and just walkin' away
From love and that's wrong
Now don't you think that's so wrong?

A happy little home comes up for sale
Because two fools have tried and failed to get along
And don't you know that's wrong?

A man hurts a woman and a woman hurts a man
And neither one of tried to love and understand
And take it with a grain of salt

A little bit of love is better than no love
Even the sad love is better than no love
And any kind of love is better than no love at all

A little bit of love is better than no love
Even the bad love is better than no love
And any kind of love is better than no love at all

No love at all is a poor old man
Standin' on the corner with his hat in his hand
And no place to go and he's feelin' low

No love at all is a child in the street
Dodgin' traffic and beggin' to eat
On a tenement row and that's a rough row to hoe

No love at all is a scared young girl
Standin' on a bridge at the edge of the world
And it's a pretty short fall

A little bit of love is better than no love
Even the sad love is better than no love
And any kind of love is better than no love at all

A little bit of love is better than no love
Even the bad love is better than no love
And any kind of love is better than no love at all

A little bit of love is better than no love

Even the bad love is better than no love
And any kind of love is better than no love at all

A little bit of love is better than no love
Even the sad love is better than no love
And any kind of love is better than no love at all
