Too far I came
And nothing changed
No reason to search on
Is to be found

The ruin too vast
All is nowhere
And every way
Is leading here

Every step I lost a bit
Now I'm almost gone
Devived
I'm lost by life
Too deep in dust
Made of yesterday

Release me
From despair
That is my everywhere

[Qorban:]
"Unending ashes are the ocean to drown me,
To douse any spasm of life remaining in this treading corpse,
Where every step is bringing me deeper into this wasted,
Bottomless world uttering 'you don't belong here,
You are life and the time of life has passed'.
And I do think my body is slowly and surely giving in,
When every mile gives birth to more ruin,
An endless sea of monotony.
Despite myself, I watch my knees caving in, sinking into my grave,
Welcomed by earth, shrouded by storm.
And I am too drained to ride, too battered, too
devived..."

My eyes are veiled
A final time
Yet summoned by a distant glow,
Am I to be born anew?
