Where is the blue sky?

Where is the moonshine?

Where is the sunrise in your eyes?

So here are my footprints,

here are the good things,

here is something to believe in.

What is what you see?

Do you give me your car key?

Have you always reflected the things that I say?

How many children will cry in the night?

Too many women can't treat their babies right!

I have finished, I have finished with this world of illusions.

But where is the answer?

And who is the dancer?

He dances his heart away ...

So will you believe in the things that I'm seeking?

And can you trust me just one more time?

In this old country lives a grey junkie

and he whispers still your name!

In his hands you see mirrors of painted, drafted errors

But he can not explain!

So where is the bottle

I held in the battle of mind against soul?

And will you believe in the dreams I am seeking?

And can you believe me just one more time?
