Will I ever find another like you, will I ever find another so true You said, you said, you'd stay then you left on the very first train, left me nothing to say yeah since you've gone I can't explain

Will I ever find another like you really,
will I ever find another so true I scratched the shores alone trying to find some trace of you, your ship went down with the storm, they said you were the only surviving crew

Will I ever find another like you really,
will I ever find another so true There could never really be another quite like you, there could never really be another
