They promised you roses
All you got were promises
What you believed in everyone else
You forgot about yourself

You do what you needed
And it didn't even seem to help
Not what you're looking for you thought you had Before it all began to melt

Like the light of day
I can see through you and all you say
Even if you try and get away
The final escape
Will bring you face to face

Haven't you noticed
You've made a bargain you can't break
You thought with this freedom now you find
You're a shadow in a empty space
House on the corner
End of an old familiar street
Someone is waiting and it's understood
This game is only played for keeps

Like the light of day
I can see through you and all you say
Even if you try and get away
The final escape will bring you face to face
The final escape will bring you face to face
The final escape will bring you face to face

Face to face
It will find you face to face
To remind you face to face
It will find you face to face
To remind you face to face
It will find you face to face
To remind you face to face
It will find you face to face
To remind you face to face
It will find face to face

To remind you face to face
It will find face to face
To remind you face to face
