What if God has never been there
Only invented for someone to blame
Every time the world seems unfair
It's when Heaven's falling down

There are so many men
And many own beliefs
Different views and some false ideas
Still many new religions
Among some foreign idols
Prejudice is that the other one's wrong

Killing, fighting
Dying trying
All seems right in the name of a God
Hopeless hundreds
Sad and lonesome
When someone laughs the other one cries

What if God has never been there
Only invented for someone to blame
Every time the world seems unfair
It's when Heaven's falling down
Falling down

What if the laws are just
A result of human fear
An evidence of such an incapacity
All our faith is just
A sign of blank despair
Our race is cursed for all eternity

Killing, fighting
Dying trying
All seems right in the name of a God
Hopeless hundreds
Sad and lonesome
When someone laughs the other one cries

What if God has never been there
Only invented for someone to blame

Every time the world seems unfair
It's when Heaven's falling down

What if God has never been there
Only invented for someone to blame
Every time the world seems unfair
It's when Heaven's falling down

What if God has never been there
Only invented for someone to blame
Every time the world seems unfair
It's when Heaven's falling down
Falling down
