We do not believe that love is free cause anything worth fighting for doesn't come for free
how a war might save us
how a war might save us
the institutions of the world will only serve to enslave us.

it's time for you and i to face the signs and realize that living's a battle for all the times we cried and told the lies and realized life's not a rehearsal come on babe, swing your heartache

we have learned that hope does not come cheap we all must sacrifice in the name of our beliefs
the frontier is misery
what do you think it is that makes us free? a life without boundaries if you question everything

for all the times we've cried and told the lies and realized life's not a rehearsal

here's something that you should know getting older doesn't always mean you grow turning from the shadows following behind you to stare at the sun can easily blind you the only way to learn, you're not afraid to die could very well involve risking your life despite the contradictions that these worlds imply, you've got to live on, live on, live on.

come on babe (repeat to fade)
