

Your Sweet Uncertainty "When The Lights Go Dim"

My mind is filled with distorted thoughts
With visions of childhood moments I lost
Still hanging on what I believe in
I wish it now but it's always like dreaming

And in this world you learn to let go
But it's not easy when you've helped me grow
When the lights go dim I'll know you've begun
The night is gone and I'm not afraid of the sun

Should I forget all the afternoons
Put aside every memory I knew
Bruised hearts and topped off by broken glass
Same room, same group that we thought would last

And in this world you learn to let go
But it's not easy when you've helped me grow
When the lights go dim I'll know you've begun
The night is gone and I'm not afraid of the sun

As I lay down tonight
I can't help but wonder why
We all were there hanging by a thread
Because your greed our dreams are dead

And in this world you learn to let go
But it's not easy when you've helped me grow
When the lights go dim I'll know you've begun
The night is gone and I'm not afraid of the sun

And in this world you learn to let go
But it's not easy when you've helped me grow
When the lights go dim I'll know you've begun
The night is gone and I'm not afraid of the sun
