Cried all night when you told me that I'd lost you I died inside as I watched you walk away
And all this time I didn't doubt your reasons
But I can't heal

Now I sleep like a baby,
and all my dreams come true
'Cause the rest of my life has nothing to do with you

Pulled up my favorite chair at my favorite tavern Turned to see you standing there with envy in your eyes and I saved your life from 13 years of anger
But I broke every bone on the way home swinging at the sky

Now I sleep like a baby,
and all my dreams come true

Stumbled in to find you cryin' in the kitchen I argued with a broken heart and fabricated pride and the battle raged for hours, But I didn't have the power to make you understand so you turned and said goodbye

Now I sleep like a baby,
and all my dreams come true
'Cause the rest of my life has nothing to do with you

Now I sleep like a baby
and all my dreams come true
'Cause the rest of my life has nothing to do, nothing to do, nothing to do with you
