"Falling To Pieces"

New year is everything still the same
Hit the wall and feeling nothing
What do you have to take till you start to break

Close your mind to these things they said
Close the door and lay down your head
Is this how you wanted to be, living so carefully

She says I feel like I'm falling to pieces
Just like before
I knew it, and now I can see right through it again

Little world and big reality
No consolations when you're obsolete
What do you have to say when they throw you away
