Your smile drives me freezing
Snow throws it away
You're the laughter in my silence
The crow that keeps me awake
Green towel less soft spoken
The thoughts you never knew
The lies and empty promises
I gave them all to you

How does it feel?
How is it that I can feel?
Coz I, I need to know

Coz I, I know I can never be enough
To replace your one ever
And I, I think it's shiny and blue
Like an instant see-through
Coz I, I know I can never be enough
To replace your one ever
Now everything is silent,
Everything is still without you near

Everything about you
The world was something new
And I was there at the open
Well just to be with you
But every time I see the shelter
Every time I walk away
You're the laughter in my silence
The call that feeds my day

How does it feel?
How is it that I can feel?
Coz I need to know

Coz I, I know I can never be enough
To replace your one ever
And I, I think it's shiny and blue
Like an instant see-through
Coz I, I know I can never be enough
To replace your one ever
Now everything is silent,

And everything is still without you near

And every time I see you passing by
I will stay here waiting for you
And I will talk to myself
On a lazy sunday afternoon
And I'll still say that prayer for you
I'll be your everything, god knows me
I'll try to be so perfect you'll see
But nothing can compare to you
Whatever lies out there

There's no one here
There's no one here
